• Topic :-

Service Sector and Employment relationship.

This sector is also one of the significant segments. It creates opportunities related to employment like public employment service and private employment services.

Public Employment Services:

Public employment services are one of the major conduits for implementing employment and labour market policies. Now, more than ever stronger employment services play an increasingly important role in job matching. Enhancing employee ability, addressing skill mismatches and bringing support directly to employees and workers through operating various active labour market programs.

Private Employment Services:-

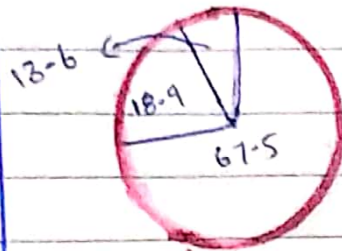

The emergency of private employment services where appropriately regulated offers opportunities for co-operation in service delivery and to increase out reach to diverse groups in the labour market - co-leboration is also established with not for profit and non-government institutions to expand coverage and provide additional services to specific target groups.

• "Growth of service sector effects the rate of Employment."
